

W. M. Whitney & Co.

ALBANY, Saturday, Nov. 10, 1892.
The weather for to-day is likely to be generally fair.

The Dress Remnants we spoke of in yesterday's story will remain on the table located in the north aisle at the lower end until disposed of.

The pieces are composed of all sorts of colored woolen DRESS GOODS from one and a half yards to eight yds and the prices are within reach of the most economical purse and worthy the glance from the wealthiest purse. Especially if you'd like a child's dress pattern. Some of the neatest patterns are likely to disappear fast.

Near by you find a limited quantity of 36-inch all-wool embroidered chevrons in all wantable colors, 30c. the yard. Its real value is 50c to 65c the yard.

A continuation of the Ribbon sale, from the fact of the arrival coming to-day. All the best colors are in the lot and plenty of new Ribbon weaving, including the Ida and Mina designs.

A 60c ribbon for 10c the yard causes a getting together of ribbon lovers that lowers the bins. Then, too, they are dependa ribbons, clean, bright, fast colors. All at 20c on a dollar sales basis.

There are bargains all over this house. Systematically arranged bargains wanted and taken by man, woman and child. Bargains are the head-light of this house, hence, always found at the front. Just now its steady rays are gleaming amid the Cloaks and Furs.

In the lighted paths are found choice bargain spots. Great chances to wrap yourself cheaply—elegantly. Here's three.

Mixed cloth tan jackets, lap seams, handsome horn buttons, $9.00; was $15.00.

Black cheviot jackets, full shawl collars of Astrachan, fur head ornaments, $9.98; were $12.00.

Special lot of cheviot jackets, black only, 34 inches long, half satin lined, lap pockets, $4.98; forty-eight hours ago they were $7.00.

The wise, the prudent will buy Dolls now—and will hide them until Christmas Eve, not six weeks off.

Dress Goods. It's an error to suppose that all our Dress Goods get advertised. Scores, hundreds of sorts, are unheard. Tongues, not types, tell their virtue. And experience both tests and proves them.

Choicest stocks of Silks, Woolens and Black Dress Goods between the Oceans are here—here in Albany. Strange? Why so?

WILL THERE BE A COLLISION?

ASTRONOMERS STUDYING THE PATH OF THE VAGRANT COMET.

Prof. Chandler, of Harvard College, will probably be the first to give a close estimate on the time of its crossing the Earth's Orbit—No Cause for Alarm at Present.

The whole world is anxiously waiting to learn what may be expected from the comet that is bearing down upon the earth eleven million miles away. The great astronomers of the day are at work upon computations, and will soon be able to tell whether there is to be a collision, or whether the comet will pass by the earth at a safe distance.

Prof. Chandler, of Harvard College, will probably be the first to give a close estimate on the time of its crossing the Earth's Orbit—No Cause for Alarm at Present.

The comet is a diffuse, round, foggy mass of light, and it is only in the last few weeks that it has been observed. It is a very new comet, and its path is very unusual. It is a very new comet, and its path is very unusual.
